The President Secures Assent of Operators to the Appointment of a Commission to Settle the Issues.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]

JASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The operators have agreed to the appointment of a commission, to, be appointed by the President of the United States, to whom shall be referred all questions at issue between the companies and their employes, whether they belong to a union or not, and the decision of the commission shall be accepted by the operators.

The commission is to consist of an army or navy engineer officer, an expert mining engineer, not connected with the coal-mining properties; one of the judges of the United States Court of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, a man of prominence eminent as a sociologist, and a man who, by active participation in mining and selling coal, is familiar with the physical and commercial features of the business. The operators also make a part of the proposition that the miners shall return to work as soon as the commission is constituted and cease all interference with non-

The commission is to name a date when its findings shall be effective and to govern conditions of employment between the companies and their own employes for at least three years.

No pick handles were used or mentioned, either at the instance of Dr. Pardee or any other person, and while Dr. Pardee told us he would not countenance anything against the law, his attitude toward the members of the union was friendly—so much so, that when requested to represent us before the railroad officials, for the purpose of getting back the positions of the striking railway men, he, with a committee of citizens of Oakland, went to Man Francisco, and secured for the members of our union the best possible terms for us that he could, and, by reason of his attitude, most of the strikers returned to work."

Weakness of Presentation of Mexi Cause—Influence of the Hague Tribuna in Familiarising Europe With Ameri-can National Ideals and Promoting

PARIS, Oct. 12.—[By Atlantic Cable.]

United States State Department, Blahop
Riordan of San Francisco, and others who were present at The Hague during the recent sessions of the International Court of Arbitration which

Judge Penfield says the court's decisions in the matter may by rendered all events it will be given within the present month. To a representative of the Associated Press, Judge Penfield gave an opinion of the status of can observation of the general influences which The Hague tribunal is exerting in behalf of America. He said::

"Although the decision of the court is doubtful, I feel consider of a favorable result. The court practically narrowed the issue to a question, of result. The court indicated a tendency favorable to our position in this issue, if this assumption proves correct, it is then only a question of figures to accertain the amount due, and which is something over $1,000,000.

"The court commented upon the thoroughness of the American presentation of the case. The United States furnished practically the entire evidence, transcripts, etc. Mexico furnished practically to the entire evidence, transcripts, etc. Mexico furnished practically nothing, not even copies of the Mexican archives in her exclusive control, and which were required under the protocol. As a result of these facts the American record was all the court had, and Mexico relied upon a generalized argument."

Commenting upon the broad international aspects of the The Hague organization, Judge Penfeld said:

"The Hague tribunal is accomplishing important results for America. Arbitration is not taken as seriously in Europe as it is in the United States. We observed an undercurrent of cynleism respecting arbitration, which is regarded as sentimental and ideal. The American idea of treating international arbitration seriously is beginning to exert its influence, so it promises to overcome European prejudice and to lead to a general acceptance of this principle. Another important influence of The Hague tribunal is that it is acquainting Europe with real Americanism. In Europe they hardly understand our ideal of the equality of man; the individual counts for little there. The international arbitration court gives us our first opportunity of presenting to the Old World our exalted does concerning the rights of people and that the function of government is the protection of the individual.

Aeronaut Falls From Mid-air.

Ropes Attaching Car to Balloon Broke.

Drop of Six Hundred Feet to Painless Death-Story of Eyewitness.

[BT THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]
PARIS, Oct. 13.—[By Atlantic Cable.]
Baron de Bradski, the aeronaut, and a companion were killed by failing from a dirigible balloon today. The balloon started from the aero station at Vaugiriard, a suburb of this city, at 7:55 a.m. on a trial trip. After preliminary maneuvers with a rope attachment, De Bradski released the balloon, and proceeded southward at a height of 300 or 400 feet. The propellers of the machine appeared to work well; the rudder, however, was not quite as successful. At about 9:30 the balloon had returned to above the point of departure, and then it gradually mounted higher and higher, until it disappeared in the clouds. When the balloon was above St. Anns, near St. Denis, about five and a half miles from the center of the city, the ropes attaching the car to the balloon broke from some unknown cause, and the car, with its occupants, De Bradski and Morin, was dashed to the ground, and the aeronauts met instantaneous death. The balloon itself disappeared in the clouds.

WIRE ROPE BROKE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]
PARIS, Oct. 13.—When the balloon arrived over St. Denis the aeronauts called to some workmen in the fields, asking the direction to Pantin. De Bradski and Morin were seen moving about the car. Suddenly one of the wire ropes broke, and then another gave way, and the car, weighing 850 pounds, crashed to the ground. burying the aeronauts beneath it. They were crushed, legs were broken and faces were bloody, but they were not disfigured. The bodies were taken to St. Denis, last week, but postponed the at-figured. The bodies were taken to St. Denis.

De Bradski was ready to ascend early last week, but postponed the attempt on account of windy weather. The balloon in which he ascended today was an improvement on his original design, its size being increased, as it was found inadequate to carry the weight intended, and this entailed lengthening the car, rearranging the suspension wires and other changes. It was in the form of a cylinder, ending in a cone thirty-fave feet long in front and twelve feet long behind, the same length as the Santos Dumont airship which won the Deutsch prize, though its volume was larger, because the length of the cylindrical part was longer. The balloon proper contained 738 cubic feet. The frame was seventy feet long and was made of steel tubes. It carried a car sixteen feet long, suspended below the envelope of the balloon, which guarded against risk of fire from the sixteen-horse-power petroleum motor. The frame weighed 300 pounds.

The airship was propelled by a screwity less in the feet in diameter and heat works.

Rve feet wide, fixed to the right and left of the envelope, giving it the appearance of an enormous aeroplane, and intended to enable the airship to sail about or descend slowly in case the motor stopped.

The catastrophe sent a thrill of horror through Paris, following the disaster to the Brazilian aeromut, Sevro, who was killed May 12 last, and whose balloon started from the same shed. The principle of the latter ship had been warmly discussed and its ascent was awaited with the keenest interest. A number of aeronauts, friends of De Bradski, and the latter's wife were present at the start. His wife, though anxious that her husband should demonstrate the success of his invention, witnessed his departure with much emotion, and especially as the conversation of the spectators turned on the possible fatal ending of the speciment.

much emotion, and especially as the conversation of the spectators turned on the possible fatal ending of the experiment.

De Bradski first tried the ascensional screw, situated below the car, and the airship held by ropes, rose easily and maintained its equilibrium. De Bradski was satisfied, and said he would maneuver over the drilling grounds. A whistle was blown and the ropes released, the propelling screw behind was set in the proper direction, when suddenly a southwest wind sprang up, the aidship swerved to the northwest instead of to the northeast. Crossing the main boulevard the craft executed a number of evolutions, but continued northward with the wind, eventually disappearing over the great white badilicajof the Church of the Sacred Heart and the top of the hill of Montmartre. The aeronaut's wife and friends waited at the shed from 8 until 16 o'clock, and grew anxious at the prolonged absence. When the balloon was perceived at an immense height this increased the anxiety, as it was known the airship was never intended to rise to such a point. It was, however, merely the inflated envelope which drifted back across Paris, after the accident had relieved it of the weight of the car.

A few minutes later a telegram arrived with the news of the disaster. An eyewitness gave the following account of the accident:

"I was standing at the steps of my building when I heard a voice cailing. I looked up and saw an airship a hundred yards in the air. M. Morin was leaning out of the car, and asked through a megaphone where was a suitable spot to descend. I indicated a place in the neighborhood, and the air and balloon turn sharply, and at the same moment I heard a noise like the tearing of a cloth. The plano wires oftending the front of the car to the balloon had broken, other wires oftending the front of the wire sollowed suit, the car became detached, and it fell to the ground 200 yards distant.

The Balloon tiself bounded up in the air and disappeared. I hurried to the spot and found De Bradski dead and terribly

In 1896 she went to Skagway, and by washing clothes earned enough money to grubstake ber husband while he went to Klondike in the rush of that year. She followed him later to a claim on the Bonanza, which I made them rich after it had been developed. She had the washboard made of gold as the symbol of her struggles to help her husband. Early in the day of that fight he was wounded by a Russian cannon ball shot killing his horse and carrying away one of his own legs. If S HE'S coming today," Trix Venner said, despairingly, looking up from an open fetter. Bernice, the eldest Venner, smiled wanly. "I knew it," she said. "Misfortunes never come singly. Cassy, the youngest of them, who had foolish dimples and floss silk curis all over a wise little head, protested mildly: "Don't say that, Berry. I'm sure Cousin Angela means to be very kind."

"She'il nag, nag, nag over our risking that money—I'm sure there was not enough to be worth keeping," Trix said, dropping her head between her hands. Bernice laughed—she had the spirit of them all. "Right you are, Trix," she said. "Still, there's no denying I don't see Just how we are to live without the hundred odd dollars' interest it brought."

"Why, somebody, allbodies, must go to work," Trix answered, sighing.

"I'm already in business, raising chickens," Bernice said, smiling whim sically. "Hereafter I shall sell brollers and fresh ergs instead of letting them be eaten at home. You needn't laugh—I can make something out of my chicks—and Trix has at least a chance to be organist at St. Michael's. Cassy must keep house and help me with the brooders. Oh, we shall manage famously without troubling Cousin Ange."

"I hate to trouble her, but there isn't are other war." Cassy and with the broad.

cassy ran on as though she had not been gasped. Cassy ran on as though she had not most infantile smile. The other two stared. "You don't mean you are going to live with her—be a companion and dependent?" Bernice cried, red spots.

"Why does she not marry him and have done with it, I wonder?" Trix said, reflectively. Bernice had turned away her head, the red dying out quicker than it had come to her cheeks. Cassy sat very straight. "That is one of the things I am going to find out," she said; then, as a thunderous knock sounded: "Talk of angels and Angelas! There she is, as sure as fate!"

Miss 'Angela Venner, otherwise the family, was heavy in person, as in purse. Notwithstanding Bernice, a siender beauty, was so curlously like her. Angela could not help hating her. Undoubtedly, it was aggravating to have fate take the same general outline and color scheme, yet from it evoive a creature so exquisite as to make one, seem a coarse and danby caricature. Still, since Miss Venner had really a conscience, she greeted Berry more affectionately 'than the others, even pumping a few tears.

"But don't you worry, Cousin Ange," Bernice said bravely, "We can take care of ourselves."

"Until I am ready to take care of them," Cassy piped; then, smilling up at her rich cousin: "I'm going to marry, you know—marry rich. After that we shall all be happy."

"Indeed. Who is the man?" Miss Venner demanded, half aghast. Cassy smiled more infantinely than ever. "I am going home with you to find out."

"With all my heart, you ridiculous baby," Miss Venner said, pinching. Cassy's cheek. In her fortnight's stay she made at least fifty separate plans, but went home with Cassy under her wing, assured that her poor cousins were ungratefully bent upon working out salvation in ways of their own devising.

But in the Pleasant Ways of Peace.
Good thing some men are married.
Their wives keep a sensitive watch over them, and have a way to help overcome their troubles.

Mr. E. Lewis of Shantko, Or., was located for several years at various points in South America, and fell into the native custom of frequently drinking coffee. He says: "I took to using it the same as those nervous, excitable people in South and Central America. They make very black coffee and it becomes more or less an intoxicating severage. At the end of about four months, I-began having severe sick headaches and nervousness, but supposed it was from the tropical sun. At last my wife became alarmed at my headaches and stomach trouble. She tried to induce me to quit drinking coffee, laying my trouble to that, but I continued to use it.

were unstratefully bent upon working out salvation in ways of their own devising.

Midsummer always brought Vendale to its best. This especial midsummer it was fairly enchanting. Cassy had been there two months. Carter Lee and his bachelor uncle, the major, had kept things social humming. The two balanced beautifully—Carter had money and willful strength; the major gallant experience. Between them it was no work at all to make Cassy the belle of the countryside. Miss Angels had let them into Cassy's plous purpose, and so set them to fetching in the eligibles in herds.

For a young person thus speculatively bent, Cassy was no end difficult—so difficult, indeed, Miss Angels begged Carter to take her to task roundly. "She is letting slip the best chances she can ever hope to have," said Cousin Angels. "Refused three men last week, to my certain knowledge, each of whom has thousands a year." So Carter lay in wait for Cassy as she went out to the rose garden. For a minute they walked silently along the petal-strewn paths; then the man faced about, asking plumply, "Cassy, who keps you from marrying rich?" You've been engaged, as in have not, this last seven years, Cassy retorted, looking at him sidewise.

Re laughed not quite stily, "Den't to continue of the said of the country and the properties of the past year, and have been completely cured of constipation by changing to postum, and we shall never go back to softee again."

EFFORTS TO MAINTAIN SECRECY.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED FRESS-AM.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—It was learned early today that President Baer of the Philadelphia and Reading company was called to New York Sunday, and that he spent the day in close conference probably with J. P. Morgan over the anthracits coal miners' strike. What the outcome of the supposed conference will be is a matter of complete guesswork.

The greatest mystery was thrown around the movements of President Baer. He left his home in Reading, Pa., on a special train at 7 o'clock Sunday morning and arrived in Jersey City at 10:30 o'clock. From that moment until he stepped from a ferryboat at 11 o'clock in the evening, absolutely nothing certain is known of his movements. At 11:15 o'clock he boarded a train for Reading by way of Philadelphia, and is said to have stated that he did not expect to be in New York again today. The Herald publishes the following:

"J. P. Morgan's yacht, Corsair, lay at anchorase in the North River, off Thirty-fifth street, all Sunday. Mr. Morgan was aboard. Three men were said to be in conference with him from early in the afternoon until after 10 o'clock at night. About 9 o'clock a launch was sent to the Erie ferry bearing a servant with a baggage check, and he returned to the Corsair a little later with a satchel.

"At 19:15 o'clock two men came ashore and entered a cab that had been waiting for them for more than an hour. They hurried into the cab without even giving any directions, and the driver started up. About a block away he leaned over to find out where his passengers wanted to go. In the dim light the older of the two men appeared to be George F. Baer, president of the Reading company. Dispatches from Wilkesbarre are to the effect that the announcement is momentarily expected of a settlement of the great strike."

Those who participated in the conference were E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie Railroad: President Oliphant and Vice-President Wilcox of the Deleware and Hudson, President Fowler of t dent Truesdale of the Delaware, Lack-awanna and Western road, when he ar-rived, said:

"A conference is to be held, and it will be an important one. It may be productive of immediate results on the situation."

in the day a statement might be issued.

Later Thomas and Truesdale called at Morgan's office, and remained in confrence with him for a short time. When seen, both again positively decilined to make any statement as to the conference. H. A. B. Widener also called on Morgan.

Later this afternoon it was stated at the office of Chairman Thomas that there was no statement to be made in regard to the conference of the coal operators in the Eric office today, notwithstanding the intimation earlier in the day that a statement might be made. The report that Morgan had assured Secretary of War Root that the miners should receive a 10 per cent, increase on returning to work was answered by President Thomas's secretary as follows: "No 10 per cent, increase has been granted nor considered. This report must be denied emphatically."

Oliphant also said that he knew nothcrease has been granted nor considered. This report must be denied emphatically."

Oliphant also said that hyknew nothing about a 10 per cent. increase. There is good authority for the statement that Secretary Root did not bring an ultimatum from the President, as reported, but rather that the Secretary was directed by the President to ask Morgan to devise some means to settle the strike. Morgan, it is said, took the President's request under advisement, and later reported to Secretary Root his inability to do anything in the matter. It is known that on Friday last one of the leading operators wrote to the President demanding that the miners be furnished better protection. Then came a prompt reply, stating that the entire Pennsylvania militia had been called out, and that the situation was well in hand, Apparently the operators are not of that opinion, as it is known that another letter has been forwarded to Gov. Stone, urging that he call for Federal troops.

Morgan declined to talk about his meeting with Secretary Root last Saturday. He would not discuss the strike in any way, except to say that he had not heard of any change in the general conditions. John Markle, the independent operator, who was one of Morgan's callers, said that the strike conditions were slightly more encouraging.

settlement than it has been since it started."

The Governor would make no explanation of the reasons for his belief further than to say: "In my opinion, this week will see an end of it."

Although no definite information can be obtained, it is believed that Gov. Odeli was this morning in conference with both J. P. Morgan and President Baer, to the latter of whom he so forcibly outlined his position Friday. It is furthermore the opinion that Gov. Odell's recommendation of a 5-cents-per-ton increase in the miners' wages and recognition of the union would be the basis of settlement, although the latter may be avoided in part by asking the men to come back to work at advanced prices, without any agreement that they must leave their organisation, but also without any stipulation that the union will be recog-

Added significance was given to Truesdale's words, in view of the fact that until today he has steadfastly adhered to the statement that no step in the direction of a settlement had been taken. During the conference of last week he reiterated this statement with emphasis, and as late as Saturday afternoon he refused to admit that any progress had been made. J. P. The recruits who were with Schoeley were allowed to go unmolested

CARS AGAIN RUNNING. NEW ORLEANS STRIKE OVER.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—AM.)

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Oct. 13.—Although an arrangement was reached last night between the New Orleans Street Railway Company and its striking motormen and conductors, whereby the latter agreed to return to work this morning, there was some delay in resuming traffic on account of the new complications which arose between the employé and the company over a demand that the strikers on returning to work sign new applications for places, which were to be referred to persons who would pass upon the eligibility of the applicant, and which some of the employés declared would give the company the opportunity to reject any man they desired. A number of the men signed the applications, and took out cars, but others refused, and the union issued an order that no more cars be manned until the question was settled. However, after a conference between the officials of the carmen's organisation and the company's representatives the matter was disposed of, the applications being withdrawn, and the men were ordered to take out the cars, though it will be impossible on account of the condition of the track and wifes, to immediately resume the full service.

J. H. Eldson, the St. Louis strike breaker, against whom the street car strikers were so bitter, was escorted to the Illinois Central depot today by the police to protect him from violence. The other men who were brought here also left on today's train.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—John A. Hobson, a well-known London sociologist, who is now the guest of Harvard Uniwho is now the guest of Harvard Chiversity and the Twentieth Century Club, prophesies serious conflicts in England between organised labor and organized capital, according to the Times' special from Boston. He says:
"In England the organization of labor from the nature of things is far less firm than capital. Still the organization of labor is going on rapidly, especially where machinery is greatly used and skill is required. The trades unions object to the employment of non-union men in order to protect their organizations. The employers of England are about to try to break down the labor unions, and to break down the habor unions, and to break down the principle of collective bargaining. The House of Lords has decided that unions can be sued. This will pave the way for endless litigation, in which, because of weaker resources, the unions may be ruined.

The English workmen will turn to politics if they have the brains. In the meantime as trade declines, we will see a series of big strikes and lockouts."

MONAS (Belgium) Oct. 13.—The miners of three pits in the Grand Hornu colliery went on strike today. The movement threatens to spread through the whole district. An increase of wages is demanded by the miners on the ground that the price of coal has risen, owing to the strikes in the United States and France. It is said that the Mine Owners' Federation has refused the demand to increase wages, and that a general strike is expected to be declared Thursday.

One of the men, having succeeded in rendering habitable, by his industry and ingenuity, a house considered uninhabitable heretofore, has his family with him at Petits-Chateaux. The rest have lived thus far without their families in a sort of phalanstere set up in a disused schoolhouse; but this is only a temporary arrangement. They are now fabricating with their own hands Belgian bricks with which they intend to build houses for themselves on land belonging to the mine, and as soon as these houses are finished, they will transport their families from Perrecy and Montocau.

The average cost (per head and per day) of living in the phalanstere has been twenty-two sous. The balance of the f.3 per day which remains to them from their wages after the assessment for savings has been taken out, is devoted to the support of the absent families.

Whether the hopes of the miners of the mine ouvrière are absolutely chimerical or not is no part of my present business to determine. There is not—as far at least as I have been able to learn—a mine in France that is a mine ouvrière in the large, ideal sense in which the mine des Petits Chateaux aspires to be a mine ouvrière, but the mine of Monthieux at Rive-de-Gier (in the Department of Loire) is a not too remote approximation.

In 1891 five hundred miners were thrown out of employment by the ceassation of the exploitation of this mine on the part of its capitalist proprietors. They thereupon formed themselves into a company and worked the mines themselves, but they were unfortunate in their beginnings, and in 1894 only seventy-two of the original stock-holders remained on the ground. At that time the seventy-two steadfast ones decided to employ help and admit no more "societaires." They have prospered lately—almost phenomenally. In fact, since 1900.

All that the miners of Petits-Chateaux are striving for seems to have been accomplished in the giass industry at the famous verreric ouvrière of Aibi, Department of Tarn (it should be noted that the verrerie at Aibi was mounted with the aid of gifts from employers,) which was an outcome of a memorable strike at Carmaux, as the mine ouvrière at Montoceau.

BROADWAY COR FOURTH LOS JAHSELES ARTHUR LETTS PROPRIETOR The Notion Sale Goes Merrily On

The Biggest Kind of Savings on the Littlest Things We told you about this annual sale of notions in Sunday's paper. And to say that our notion so was crowded yesterday puts it very mildly. One lady called it a riot and another was heard to use the mob. We call it a good-natured, jolly, bargain-seeking crowd, and they all found their bargains went away satisfied. That's one of the strong features in connection with Broadway advertising always have everything we advertise and plenty of it, and our public realize this fact.

HER SISTER-IN-LAW TELLS THE STORY OF HER LIFE.

She Was Born at Natchez, Miss., and Her Mother Was a Spanish Woman, Her Father an American—She Has Written Her Brother From Europe.

[Philadelphia North American:] Mra. Mary Gliddon of No. 89 Second Place, Brooklyn, gives some remarkable information about "Ouida," whose perfervid novels have been read by many hundred or thousands of people of the present and preceding generations. Mrs. Gliddon says that "Ouida" is her sister-in-law-that is, the sister of her husband, George Ray Gliddon, who died about twenty years ago. She says further that "Ouida" is not an English woman, born at Bury, St. Edmunds, 59 years ago, of a French father and an English mother, as all the world heretofore has supposed.

"Ouida." according to Mrs. Gliddon, is an American woman in spite of the fact that common report has it that Americans, both men and women, as well as everything American, are her particular and pet antipathies. Here is Mrs. Gliddon's story of what she knows about the novelist:

"My husband was born at Natchez, Miss. His father was an American and his mother was a Spanish woman, He had no French blood in his veins. As a matter of fact, he detested the French. He had no brothers and but introductory MANAGING HUSBANDS.

Managing of a husband was treated of in The Times of Monday by a woman who is apparently mistress of the art. In her able article, Christine Terbune Herrick has given her husband-attached sisters something to read that they ought to commit to memory and pasts up in their boudoirs for fear they may forget it. The average husband doesn't need so very much managing, when it comes right down to the root of the matter. He wants to be let alone part of the time; to have the run of the house without being rawhided for coming in with specks of mud on his shoes; he wants to smoke all over the place; he doesn't want to be nagged because one of the children has misbehaved during the course of the day behaved during the course of the day that he was downtown battling with the foes of peace; he doesn't want to be blown up if he meets a friend on the car and brings him home to dinner, and he doesn't want to find out that he is being managed. This is not said from the woman's standpoint, but from that of the husband of many years' standing. Mrs. Herrick has said all these things in her own clever and effective way, but the matter is of such importance to the orbehaved during the course of the being made comfortable and happy, although they are not as plenty as they ought to be; still they might be more plentiful if skilifully handled by clever wives. We trust that Mrs. Herrick's remarks on the hasband

Their competition with us in neutral markets, will probably, unless we ourselves are active, become increasingly serious. Every year will add to their acquired capital and skill, and they will have larger and larger additions to their population to draw upon. It is necessary, therefore, more than ever, that the change of conditions should be recognized, and we can scarcely expect to maintain our past undoubted preëminence, at any rate without strenuous effort and careful and energetic improvement in method. The problem how best this can be done is of vital interest to all classes of the industrial and commercial community alike, though the assistance which the State can give in the matter must necessarily be of a limited character."

We hear much these days about the 'lowa Idea." There are moments when it looks as if the idea was to get a job in the President's Cabinet. And it seems to work, too.

bicycle breaks that were almost accidents.

Perhaps no one of the enthusiastic admirers would dispute that Billy Van was about the whole show. At least, he was so much of it that without him it could hardly have been the winner it was. Billy Van is one of the most comical performers that ever graced a minstrel stage. You nearly always feel ashamed to laugh at him, but it is impossible to resist. The way he paints his mouth is worth the price of admission, and the way he sucks at a cigar as though it were the first he ever smoked, is funny enough to stock a whole season's edition of almanacs. Yet there were other old-timers. John King is a laughable painted negro, and the thin silver tenor of Clement. Stewart has delighted the frequenters of wayside operahouses for many years. King was as good as ever, and Stewart's voice retains its sweet purity. The Ford brothers gave a marvelous exhibition of an art that is fast fading out—the famous clog dance. The Zarrow Trio, known to the variety stage, proved a whirlwind of excitement with their variegated bicycles. And there were others.

BURBANK. Vulgarity varied by more vulgarity and relieved by ten minutes of indescribable indecency, is to be seen at the Burbank this week, as "McCarthy's Mishapa." Mack and Ferguson are responsible for this perpetration. There are two or three bright, pretty young girls who do dances and coon songs (the latter most terribly vocalized) and fill one with a profound pity that they are beginning stage work in such a coarse atmosphere. There is some moderately good acrobatic work, and Barney Ferguson shuffles his feet well. It is disgusting to see any woman handled in the manner that Rome adopts toward the dainty girl who shares his specially. There is nothing further to be said of the piece save to draw the attention of the Burbank janitor to the cleansing properties of chloride of lime.

In the Eighth Congress District, there is no doubt as to the election of Capt. M. C. OPEN AIR LUNG CURE.

CONSUMPTION IS AN INDOOR DISEASE INVITED BY LACK OF OYXGEN IN BLOOD—NEW THEORY OF ORIGIN—MAJORITY OF PROPLE IMMUSE TO TUBERCULOSIS—HINTS ON HYGIENIC

(Pathologist and Lung Specialist, Chicago.)

N VIEW of an extensive clinical experience in the management of consumption I feel enabled to say omething new and practical on its ause and hygicale treatment. I say ractical because results have been other exercises which force air in upon the lungs exert a beneficial influence upon the consumptive. Fresh air is undoubtedly the important food of the blood. By starving the blood for oxygen, carbonic gas becomes all the more injurious. The morbid condition which follows prepares the way for pathogenic germs. COURSE OF THE MALAD?.

CONSUMPTION A HOUSE DISHASE.

Cell poisoning is now recognized by many pathologists as the starting point of infectious diseases, and that microorganisms act not directly, but by synthetic substances formed within their cells. The exact morbific condition of the blood which is favorable to the tubercle bacilius is not fully understood, but there is not much clinical evidence in support of the theory that the condition is caused by an insufficient quantity of oxygen and too much residual carbonic acid gas. In summing up some of the reasons for any arriving at this conclusion I would say that consumption is, in the main, a house disease, a place where the blood has the least chance of receiving oxygen and the best for absorbing carbonic gas over and over again.

Incipient cases of tuberculosis often recover by changing from an indoor life to an outdoor due, or otherwise changing environments. This fact is largely responsible for climatic changing. No climate is now considered so bad as to make it impractical for this purpose. It is not the individual with expansive lungs, living an outdoor life with tuberculosis by innoculation as one of the different resorts is in the open-air life. So popular has open-air treatment become that no climate is now considered so bad as to make it impractical for this purpose. It is not the individual with expansive lungs, living an outdoor life in the purpose in the different resorts is in the pen-air life. So popular has presented to as most people believe, become active. There is, however, a susceptibility to consumption in some families—an inherited tendency to afford suitable condition for tuberculosis. Environments are no doubt responsible for a share of it, but the most frequent cause is anatomical defects of the respiratory organs. Buch defects may run through several generations, just as general form of the body, facial and complexion resemblances do. Heredity cannot be applied as a fixed rule in any of the family resemblances. Hare lip may run more or less through several generasee, and the same largely applies in roducing a cure, after the disease has sen established. I include alimenta-ent as a factor because maintrition nquestionably adds to the cause of the yscrasia of the blood. Suitable food recrasia of the blood. Suitable for also important in preventing ties SUMMARY OF TREATMENT Open air treatment of lung trouble has long been practiced to a limite degree in the milder climates, but mod Sisters' Hospital Mus ern practices do not restrict patier to any particular kind of climate limit their time outdoors to daylig limit their time outdoors to daylight and good weather only.

In brief, the principles of open air treatment may be summed, up as follows: Abundant open air by day and night, indoors and out, as pure and as good as the climate and surroundings will afford. Such good and plentiful food as a simple open air life may enable the patient to digrest. The food should consist in the main of eggs, milk and meats, and the bowels should be kept open by mild cathartics. A long night's sieep and absolute rest during the febrile stage and light, exercise when the temperature is running normal.

A prominent French physician has said: "I know nothing more hideously fetid than the bedchamber of a rich consumptive. It is a spot carefully closed, where both air and hope are alike forbidden to enter; paddings are at the CORRECT BREATHING AIDS CURE. Few persons breathe properly. It may be stated that no consumptive ever breathed right. Correct breathing is both thoracic and abdominal. Not only are the lungs well ventilated during proper inspiration, but the abdominal walls expand, altering the position of all the organs, making changes in their blood supply. Slow and deep inspiration should be taken through the nose, so as to warm and purify the air before it passes over the more delicate bronchial membrances into the circulation of the blood. The clothing should be worn sufficiently loose to permit of free expansion of the chest and abdominal walls. The body should be held erect with shoulders thrown back and head up, as though the individual were suspended from the heavens by a hook in the breast bone. This way of walking seems uncomfortable at first to the bent and hollow-chested person, but it soon becomes habitual and easy.

LUNGS MUST BE KEPT OPEN.

LUNGS MUST BE KEPT OPEN.

It is essential that the lungs be kept open as much as possible. Crowding down upon these organs by the chest walls compresses and keeps the air cells in a collapsed condition, preventing the air and blood from freely circulating and mingling together. The disuse of any portion of the tungs causes the smaller bronchial tubes and air cells to become blocked with cheesy material and other catarrhal products, affording the tubercule baccillus suitable nests for breeding grounds. The free absorption of oxygen by the blood LUNGS MUST BE KEPT OPEN.

THE PIOUS FUND.

Don Luis Mendes's Reply to the Charge That He Had Aided the United States at The Hague.

In view of the dispatch from Mexico published in The Times of last Sunday relating that there was much excitement there over the alleged traitorous acts of one of the foremost members of the Imperialist party, a distinguished Mexican lawyer, who is said to have materially aided the United States in presentation of the celebrated "Pious" claims before the international tribunal at The Hague, the following article translated from El Imperial newspaper of the City of Megico is pertinent. The article appeared on the 3d inst:

"A morning daily published today a rumor to the effect that the advocate Don Luis Mendes was the author of the arguments presented by the American attorneys in the question which is now under discussion at The Hague.

"In regard to this claim, there has been sent to us the following communication, which was written by Señor Mendes to one of this friends, who had questioned him on this subject. He wrote as follows:

"'As you inform me that some of your friends in the chamber have questioned you as to whether there is any truth in a certain rumor which has been circulated to the effect that I have been consulted in regard to the question which Mexico and the United States have submitted to the tribunal of The Hague in regard to the Plous Pund of California, and that have appeared to be antagonistic to Mexico, I inclose a card which I have written to the journal which gave publicity to this rumor, with a request that it be published, so that those who are interested in the subject may learn the truth.

"Apart from this, I will say to you that, aithough it is the duty of an attorney to be the defender of justice, no matter whose part he takes, when it is a question of his case causing complications to the government of the country, the attorney is not obligated by such duty, which might then be well undertaken by many others who are not bound by the chains of nationality. In this case, I have constantly held in view the requirements of patricism, and have avoided anything which might possibly brin

The Valley Gas and Fuel Company filed in the United States District Court yesterday a bill of compainin in which it seeks to secure an injunction against the city to prevent the enforcement of the ordinance, the adoption of which made it almost impossible for the company to do business because of the restrictions it contained. The Mayor, City Attorney and Chief of Police are made co-defendants in the case because of their official capacity. It is alleged in the complaint that the ordinance is clearly illegal; that it is attempted cales legislation; that it is attempted cales legislation; that it is designed and intended to protect another corporation; that its enforcement will deprive the plaintiff of their legal rights, and the court is asked to issue a restraining order to prevent the defendants from enforcing the ordinance. ## Curing Difficult Cases.

Each and every one of those diseases peculiar to men presents a difficult problem to the average physician. Some cases are more complex than others and consequently more difficult to cure. There is one reason why I like to treat such cases. Difficult cases afford the best possible demonstration of my superior methods and skill. Have treated so many men that a clear understanding of the case is never locking, and I know exactly how to meet every requirement of a thorough cure. Of course a physician who is able to accomplish difficult cures will render the best service in minor cases as well, and I invite all men, young, middle aged or old, who are afflicted in any degree whatever with the aliments I treat to call and consult me without charge.

The two started east, presumably on Second street. When they had gone several blocks Lynn became uneasy and asked where they were going. The "converted" drunkard repiled that his home was only a little way farther on, and he asked Lynn to stay with him all night. The boy shied at this proposition, but was assured by the other that he needn't fear; that he wean't going to "bleed" him.

When they reached the riwed bed the unknown man walked over to one of the piles used in a riprap and called the boy to him.

"Put your money on that stump," he commanded, and drew a revolver, which he pointed at the boy's nead. Lynn was so badly frightened that his hand trembled as he dug down into his money pocket and he brought up only 55. "Give me the rest you've got or I'll kill you," was the next summons.

When bables come up for too many cookies, they show empty hands and say: "All gone; all gone." That was about the deal Dr. C. V. Watson got yesterday when he attempted to collect his bill against the estate of Darius Mead in the probate court.

It was a bill of $137$ for attending Mead in his last illness. The estate was appraised as worth something more than $2000, so the doctor supposed there would be enough on hand to pay him; when his will was brought in yesterday it was discovered that the estate had vanished—into the pocket of the widow. When Watson's lawyer came to size up the bewildering situation, he found it was this: Of the $2000, the widow had the home place at Chatsworth Park set aside as a homestead. That cut out

NEW FIND TO CREDIT OF NORTH ERN SONORA.

Champion Sells Tres Amigos Mine at Old Glory—John R. Gentry Mine Changes Hands—Movements in Mexico.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the discovery of a remarkably rich placer bed on the Cumaral Rancho, in Northern Sonora.

According to the report received in this city yesterday, the find was made at the headwaters of the Altar River, on what is known as the Angostura group of claims. From the amount of prospecting done, the deposit is believed to be 200 feet wide by 400 feet long, and where excavations have been made, the average depth has been found to be six feet.

A new shaft has been sunk to the depth of $00 feet, in ore that even exceeds the average in quantity and quality.

About 100 men are being kept steadily at work around the smelter at Jerome, installing new machinery and placing the works in the best possible shape. Carbonic acid gas is being pumped into the ignited workings, though with what success it is impossible to learn. The ores are so highly sulphuretic that it is believed many months of idleness will be necessary before the fire can be stamped out.

To that point, down the big steam pipe that connected with the lower pumps he lowered a stick of dynamite and blew the side out of the pipe. Then all the steam that it was possible for the boilers to make was sent down, escaping just where it was needed. All surface openings were tightly sealed. The fire was confined to the timbering of the 300 and 400-foot levels.

The Angostura group is owned by the Cumarai Mines and Development Company, which recently gave an English syndicate an option on that and other groups in the district. Since the option the placer diggings have been discovered. It has been known for some time that there was gold in the river bed, but the richness shown by the recent prospecting is a surprise to those most familiar with the property.

The company will not develop the placer for the present, as it has not yet received a full title from the Mexican government.

CHAMPION SELLS TRES AMIGOS.
One of the recent sales in the mining line is the transfer of the Tres Migos mine, near Old Glory, Ariz, to a New York syndicate. This property, which has been well opened up, was owned by C. W. Champion of Alhambra, who recently purchased it.

The mine is a low-grade gold proposition, and there are said to be at least 120,000 tons of ore in sight. Water is, however, a problem, and the new owners are will turn their attention to supplying this need at once. The price paid is in the neighborhood of $10,000.

WILL WORK JOHN R. GENTRY.

The John R. Gentry mines at Ludlow, which in times past have produced much rich ore, have lately been acquired by purchase by L. E. Porter, superintendent of the Bagdad property, and it is the intention of the management to begin development work aft once. It after on, a stamp mill will be installed, and other improvements made.

TO TRIM TREES.

COUNCIL WINNOWINGS.

COUNCIL WINNOWINGS.

Overhanging branches of shade trees in front of property controlled by non-resident owners have become such a nuisance that the Council yesterday instructed the Street Superintendent to detail a man to trim them. It was also the decision of the Council that the chain gang can be used to advantage in clearing vacant lots the owners of which can not be reached.

Some weeks ago a communication we received from the Chamber of Commerce asking that some action be taken to clean vacant lots and lop off over-hanging branches of trees. The request was referred to the Chief of Police, who presented a report yesterday. The Chief said he had consulted with the city's attorneys, and that there was no way to compel non-resident owners to care for their property. Blanchard moved that a man be detailed for the work by the Street Superintendent, and it was as ordered.

Property owners living in the assessment district for the opening of San Pedro street between Pifth and Alien streets, to the number of seventy-six yesterday filed a protest against the proposed improvement. They ask that all proceedings he abandoned. It is asserted that action was taken by the Council at the request of a very few owners, whose frontage aggregates but 100 feet, while the frontage affected amounts to 6500 feet. The protest declares that the expenses of the opening will greatly, exceed the benefits derived and that the lines proposed will cut off the frontage of several places of property, run through brick blocks, destroy homes and be otherwise injurious to many owners of property. The protest is a very strong one, bearing the names of W. H. Perry, Mrs. Emeline Childs, J. F. Holbrook, James W. Davis, Joseph Memer. Maria A. de Oca. Union Hardware and Metal Company, Los Angeles Farming and Milling Company, and many others. It was referred to the Board of Public Works for consideration at the session next Friday afference.

WIDNEY GOES CLEAR

"Bobby" Widney's not guilty, says the jury. The verdict was returned in Judge Smith's court shortly after 7 o'clock last night.

This verdict or a "hung" jury was expected. There was no hope in the heart of the prosecution, even, of a conviction.

It was a curious case, inasmuch as trip had been laid for Widney and he had been seen in the very act of going through the pockets of young Hansen of Boston, in Lena Donahue's fast The police claimed to have had information that Widney was up to such tricks, and they arranged with Lens Donahue to nab him.

tricks, and they arranged with Lena Donahue to nab him.

Under her supervision young Hansen of Boston feigned to be drunk, and "Bobby" is alleged to have poured knockout drops in his beer. But she contrived to change the glasses. All this was in the sight of hidden officers—so they claimed.

Between the preliminary examination and the first trial Hansen disappeared. The case rather fell flat without him. No one knows who or what Hansen is or was. The police claim that he is a scion of a rich Boston family; Earl Rogers, who defended Widney, claims that he is a gambler.

This was Widney's second trial; the first jury disagreed. In this trial Rogers bore down on the sympathies of the jurors. He made one feature of the defense the contention that a man who consets to be robbed as Hansen did is not really robbed at all. The case was probably won on the feeling that always is first with an American jury—suspicion of anything that does not sound fair. Rogers laid much stress on the fact that this was all arranged beforehand and Bobby was almost coaxed in where he would have no witnesses to speak for him.

The case has attracted much attention because Bobby Widney was at one time almost the "whole thing" so-put-up job to railroad Widney into State prison.

Bobby seemed all along to think he had a cinch on being acquitted.

He went back to court in the early part of the afternoon with his father and made a tour of the Courthouse, sitting down in the probate department and listening with interest to the proceedings in a case going on there. He was talking and chattering as happily as though he hadn't a care in the world. When his attorney stopped for a moment to talk to him he seemed positively jubilant.

The jury was heard from but once all afternoon. Just before Judge Smith went home for dinner at 5 o'clock the foreman told the bailiff, who went to the door, that the jurors stood "just the same." That was not very definite or satisfying information, as nobody knew how they stood.

She began to get the aweetest love letters that ever happened from this young Wiser. She realized when it was too late that she should have been wiser than to take any stock in these letters from Wiser. Still she was Wise. As she wasn't wise Miss Wise married this faithless swain and became Wiser, and then she became wiser.

She swore yesterday that he beat her and bit her and threw kitchen chairs at her. So she got a divorce. Aithough she was no longer Wise she was wiser and she got enough of being Wizer.

Judge Church, before whom the case was tried, granted her petition and allowed her to resume her maiden name.

Now, although she is considerably sadder and wiser, she is no longer Wizer, but still she is Wise. She was Wise in the beginning as far as that goes, but she is much wiser now that she is no longer Wizer.

She—but that will be about all for that.

JOHN'S ASTHMA.

John McCauley, by courtesy of Judge Smith, has gone to a place where his asthma will be better. Mr. McCauley is a hayseed, who, like the coon in the song, he "Just can't help from taking hold of things."

He went into a room of his friend, Thomas Woodward, and stole a gold watch. He told the judge when he came up to plead guilty that he had asthma pretty had. Judge Smith told him that San Quentin had a fine climate for asthma and gave him a year.

Five of six months ago, he suddenly left home. He had been a traveling salesman for a cash-register company A short time ago he reappeared with an incoherent story, in which working as a hook-keeper in Scattle and being lost on the desert figured.

He was silent and morbid and complained that people were on his trail; he heard raps on his test stiple, the thought his dead father had come back to him, and he was found out at a cemetery, where he had gone to talk to his father.

Brait told the examining physician frankly that he knew something must be the matter with his brain.

there is a petition afloat to take away his license.

The matter was heard pro and con. It is one of the temperance campaigns now going full tilt all over the county.

The little boy, whose name is Morris Cohn, testified before the board that he had been given wine by the son of the restaurant keeper, one Ramon Valdez, who worked as a waiter in the place.

"What did you do with the wine?" asked one of the Supervisors.

"I drank it," the boy confessed.

The Supervisor's curiozity was not ratisfied. "What effect did it have upon you?" he said.

"I-I didn't know where I was."

Great horror prevailed in the lobby. Valdez's license was revoked.

CALF VICTUALS" FOR

PITCHED BATTLE WITH MOTHER AND TWO LITTLE GIRLS.

One More Chapter in the Spinks-Hutchason Imbroglio-Horse Thief Held for Trial-Sebastian Simon Appeals Saloon Case to Superior Court.

An amazing story of the brutality of her two little daughters was told in the Police Court yesterday. The parties all live in a flat down near the river, on St. James street, and the children of the two families got into some trifling difficulty, as is the wont of children, and Ames took up the fight. Mrs. Schurb and her two little girls told the same story, and told it so well that all the brow-beating of Ames's attorney could not shake them in any particular.

it so well that all the brow-beating of Ames's attorney could not shake them in any particular.

Because ten-year-old Gladys Schurb struck his little gibl on the shoulder, which the latter testified did not hurt her, Ames hit the child in the face and knocked her down. They were all on a porch, and the mother was standing by, mixing "calf victuals" in a bucket; she says she jumped between the trate man and her little one, and that he struck her twice, cutting her head so that it was necessary for the police surgeon to sew up the wounds. Then she let go the bucketful of "calf victuals," and they covered the person of the belligerent Ames with a smeary mess of bran and hot water.

Next, the mother swore, Ames grabbed her and began to choke her while she clung to the balusters. Her other daughter, Mary, aged 14, ran to her mother's assistance with a broomstick, and batted the man over the head, at the same time screaming that he was trying to throw her over the balusters. To this Ames is asserted to nave retorted:

"The best way to kill you is to throw you over the balusters and break your neck."

"When I bit him over the head with the stick," testified little Mary, "he let go of mother and started after me. He put both his hands around my neck and was choking me, when mother threw the bucket at him, from up on the porch, and hit him on the nose. Ten he started after mother again; threw her down on the floor and dragged her by her hair; he put his knee againsat her stomach and jerked her head about by the hair. I had run into the kitchen so he couldn't get at me again, and when i saw him have mother on the floor I took a lamp and toid him that if he didn't let her alone I would smash it over his head; then he quit."

Ames, in his testimony, acknowledged the fight, but gave an entirely different version of it. He said he only different version of it.

When Dr. Hewes, who was in Hutch-ason's employ, saw him at it, he asked:
"What are you doing?"
Spinks replied: "It's none of your
d—n business."
Hewes testified that Spinks at the same draw a knife an him, and he forthwith hit him between the eyes with his flat. They grappied and Sighas threw Hewes to the floor, and began to choke him; after a struggle Hewes came on top, and made Sighaks promise to leave the office if he would permit him to get up. Dr. Hutchason, who witnessed the fight, testified to practically the same thing, and he further stated that Spinks had gone there on sundry occasions and amused himself in various ways. He had taken pictures from the wall and thrown them on the floor: torn the carpet from the stairs, wired the door shut, and torn the sign of the new doctors from the building. For this latter offense he was fined in the Police Court at the time.

Hutchason also testified that Spinks had at another time stood in the office with a knife in his hand, and threatened: "I'll fix you."

One confident young lady, who hadn't heard the other witnesses for the prosecution, swore that Dr. Hutchason was not there at all, although all the witnesses for the defense, and Dr. Spinks himself, testified that Hutchason was there. It is a good illustration of the McGrady out and got tangled up between a couple of express wagons. After the horse had been secured McGrady was found standing on the sidewalk in a haif-dazed condition, with the haiter and blanket belonging to the rig in his possession.

He was reticent when asked whether it was his rig, but finally said it was and became insolent to those whe had caught the horse. The result was that the police patrol was sent for and the fellow taken in.

Dots From the Police Dock.

Everlastingly-at-it Spinks.

Dr. R. E. Hewes was found guilty of battery on the person of Dr. M. E. Spinks, in Justice Austin's court yesterday. It would have been impossible for the court to render any other judgment, inasmuch as Hewes knecked Spinks down and stated so in his own evidence.

This case, however, is one of those where the line between what a man would do under like circumstances and what the law contemplates that he should do, is so closely drawn that a jury would probably have told Hewes that he did the right thing.

Spinks some months ago sold his dental business to Dr. Hutchason, and ever since the deal was made, there has been a constant war between the parties. The merits of the question may be a matter of debate and entirely too clongated to enter into a statement concerning this case. At any rate, the other day Spinks went to the office of the defendants and began to meddle with the gas fixtures, as he is the owner of the huilding, and it would seem that his purpose in so doing was to in a manner assume some sort of ownership to the dental offices.

When Dr. Hewes, who was in Hutch-

LARGE "HAMMERHEAD" LANDED, AVALON. Oct. 12.—Another monstrous hammerhead shark was brought in yesterday by C. W. Horn of Mansfield, O.; and Louis Waeschle of Delarco, N. J., who were out fishing with the Idlewild. The big brute was overnine feet long, weighed 190 pounds, and gave the anglers a great tussel before they got the gaff into it, and then came near smashing the boat with the savage strokes of its huge tail. The anglers also got twelve alblcore.

This morning the same parties, with the addition of Frank Hirsch, went out again, and almost repeated their experience of yesterday. They landed elighteen alblcore, and while one of them was being hauled in, a huge hambit off its tail. The anglers then batted for the shark, and soon had it hooked, but not for long. It paid little heed to the tackle, but simply marched off with it.

Mrs. Nico Beck-Meyer Gives County Institute Something to Talk About-Mexican Murdered on the Street Last

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 12.—"I am opposed to the teaching of religion, of whatever denomination, in the public schools," said Mrs. Nico Beck-Meyer, who is in charge of the English department in the Santa Barbara High School, at the County Teachers' Institute this afternoon. "I believe that the pupil's entire attention should be devoted to studies that are provided for by those in charge of the schools, and not to matters which are foreign to such studies." The clearness and emphasis with which Mrs. Nico Beck-Meyer made the statement attracted general attention and interest, and nearly every teacher in attendance upon the institute is talking about it. The speaker went on to explain that, under the present system of instruction, all of the pupil's time is required to "get his lessons," and have the assurance of standing when graduation exercises came around. History, geography and mathemati's, she contended, must be "drummed" into a pupil, while religious knowledge and conviction must come by degrees, governed entirely by the pupil's will.

give the time from his business to the Association. He has served for six years as a director, and for five years as president.

"I do not ask any more credit than should belong to me," said President Woodworth, "for others have worked faithfully in the interests of the association, but no matter to whom the credit belongs, I do think that the association has met with quite a fair degree of success. If I remember correctly, the first year I was president of the association we shipped 35 cars of oranges and 40 or 42 cars the next year; then the shipments jumped to 36 cars, and last year to 185 cars, and list year to 185 cars, this being the highest number of cars shipped by any association belonging to the Semi-Tropic Fruit Exchange, and I understand the Semi-Tropic Exchange in Southern California, except Riverside. So you see the Pasadena association has taken a prominent place as regards the shipment of oranges.

"The gross amount received for oranges shipped by the Pasadena association this year was $80.000 in round numbers, besides about $50.000 freight having been paid to the railway companies and about $8000 for icing cars.

"About $55.000 has been paid to the growers, and I must say right here that it seems very strange, where the association means so much to our-pasadena orange growers, that they apparently take so little interest in our annual meetings.

"It is true that I have been paid something each year for my services, and I know that many of the stockholders have thought the salary I have received was a great deal more than should be paid, and bitter complaint has been entered by some of the stockholders wear after year, on account of the high salary that was being paid to me; but notwithstanding all this I feel that the same amount of time and effort that is required in attending to the matters of the association; so, altogether, I think I have made as great a gift in time to the association; so, altogether, I think I have made as great as aft in time to the association and hope it may be well ca

They say they will have no fear of claiming the confiscated booze, though it is presumed that the claimants will be regarded as thus admitting their guilt, and may be placed under arrest.

Local coal dealers say that this city is in no danger of suffering a coal famine, or of even experiencing high prices. The price of coal will probably not go up more than $1 a ton. It is now from $10 to $11. The satisfactory conditions here are largely due to the fact that the Spreckels have lost control of the market. Black Diamond and Wellington are bucking each other, and moreover the city is exceedingly well supplied with dealers.

The death of Clark T. Havens, formerly a resident of Lynda Vista, occurred yesterday, morning in Los Angeles of brain paralysis. He was 60 years of age and leaves a widow. He had lived here about twelve years. The funeral will be held in Los Angeles, but the interment will be made in the local cemetery at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the G.A.R. officiating.

The Child Study Circle of the Franklin School will hold its first meeting of the season in the kindergarten building on Wednesday at 2 p.m. The general subject of the year will be "Citizenship." All mothers of the district are urged to attend, as the special topic, "Examinations, Their Advantages and Disadvantages," is to be discussed at this meeting.

SANTA MONICA LETTER TELLS STRANGE TALE OF DEATH.

unication Dated From That City But Woman's Relations in Ohio Look Doubtfully on Statement Made Ocean Park Conduct Exemplary.

SANTA MONICA, Oct, 13.—A story comes from Cincinnati, O., which connects this town with a mysterious death or disappearance of a woman of that city. According to advices received from Cincinnati by the law firm of Tanner & Taft, Mrs. David Thornburgh of that city is mysteriously reported dead. The advices are contained in part in a clipping from a Cincinnati newspaper.

According to the clipping Mrs. Thornburgh was for many years agent for considerable property in the western part of Cincinnati, and her husband was formerly connected with the Actna Insurance Company. Mrs. Thornburgh is said to have left Cincinnati some time ago, and was supposed to have gone to Colorado. An attorney who had charge of Mrs. Thornburgh's affairs was shown a letter by Mrs. Louise Stevens, a friend of Mrs. Thornburgh's, stating that Mrs. Thornburgh was dead. The letter bore date of August 24, and date line, Santa Monica, Cal. The envelope bore the postmark of Grand Junction, and was signed Elmer M. Clarke. The letter did not state the time, exact place or manner of burial Junction, and was signed Elmer M. Clarke. The letter did not state the time, exact place or manner of burial of Mrs. Thornburgh, but, after a pre-liminary statement that Mrs. Thornburgh was dead, said that she died at Tennessee Pass, in the Rocky Mountains of heart failure, brought on hy the high altitude, the place being, according to the letter, 19,418 feet higher than Cincinnati. The letter stated that Mrs. Thornburgh began to feel ill at Kansas City, and made a will leaving her son-in-inw and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, 1500. The clipping goes on to say that "the signature is Elmer M. Clarke, 97 San Jano (Jino) Court, Santa Monica, Colo."

Inquiry about Santa Monica has failed to discover the Elmer M. Clarke feefered to. According to the Postal Guide there is no postoffice in Colorado bearing the name Santa Monica.

Further statements in the clipping indicate that her relatives in Cincinnati de not believe that Mrs. Thornburgh is dead. There is no San Jano or San Jino Court in Santa Monica.

Upon request of the Ocean Park Fire Company the City Trustees this evening Instructed the City Engineer to prepare a map showing the locations of all fire hydrants in the city. EXCURSION ON NEW SHIP.

REDONDO, Oct. 13.—The new steel vessel Redondo, which arrived here transday carried about seventy-five Redondo people on an excursion to San Pedro yesterday. The day was perfect and the beautiful ship glided over the water so gently that none aboard were seasick. The breakwater at San Pedro was viewed, and the passengers were allowed to land a short time. At a o'clock the vessel was steered for home, arriving at 6:20. Refreshments were served in the dining-room. The Redondo was built in Toledo, O., and came around the Horn, arriving in San Francisco in August. She was then a coal burner, but has been transformed into an oil burner, and is the first steel ship on this Coast to use that fuel. She discharged $50,000 feet of lumber for Nofsiger Bros. of Los Angeles, and will be used exclusively for carrying lumber on the Coast. She has handsome apartments for passengers, and had a passenger list this trip of sixty-five. A banquet was given input to the officers and a few prominent citizens at the Redondo Hotel. City Trustees were reminded that they were elected to look after the people's interests.

A resolution which had just been adopted by the Board of Trade was presented, expressing strong favor of a franchise under right conditions, and requesting that the trustees have it duly advertised for sale.

When City Attorney Loucks arose to speak he was greeted with jeers and whisties, but he had his say. He stated that he wished to advise with the people and ascertain their wishes. He spoke of several objectionable features of the franchise proposed, one being that there is no provision to prevent a transfer to other parties without the consent of the City Trustees, and none to prevent the cutting of shade trees, or to fix a limit upon the time when the road shall be completed.

Augustus W. Wright, formerly a constructor of electric railroads in Chicago and Los Angeles, now a resident and rancher here, made an address, in which he set forth the destrability and advantages of a trolley line for Pomona, stated the rights of companies, and urged that not too many obstacles or restrictions be placed in the way of progress and improvement in this connection, lest Pomona be left "out in the cold."

REDONDO BREVITIES.

Owing to the increase in the enrollment of pupils in the Redondo school this year, a new classroom has been added, and Miss Blind of Los Angeles has been assigned to teach.

SAN GABRIEL, Oct. 13.—The Pacific Electric Company has a large force at work on the new line to Monrovia, grading the roadway through the Shorb ranch and building a bridge over the arroyo on the Patton ranch.

The wagon bridge over the arroyo between Alhambra and San Gabriel will be completed soon.

Several cottages, ranging in cost between $600 and $1000, have been built, or are in course of construction, at East San Gabriel.

The Fay Fruit Company is having a fine new packing-house built at the station on the Monrovia line. The building is fifty feet by 125 feet, and will have a capacity of several cars a day. This company handles a large per cent, of the oranges grown in this district.

J. F. Hall has built, for the Cemetian education and Pomona College. He asked for subscriptions toward canceling the debt of the college and in about fifteen minutes over $2000 was piedged by members of the congregation. This makes the total of piedges made by members of this congregation at different times for the support of the college nearly $25,000. The Claremont Church recently pledged $2000, and the Congregational Church at Ontario $1000. Other churches in Southern California are taking the matter up, and it is hoped that the debt may soon be provided for, when there is a good prospect of the endowment fund being increased at least $50,000.

POMONA, Oct. 12.—The citisens of Pomona want an electric railroad, and they favor the granting of a franchise under proper restrictions. That is the declaration made at a mass meeting held tonight for discussing the subject. It was a meeting called by the Board of Trade, and in view of the disgraceful row in the Board of City Trustees at its last meeting, something sensational was expected, but did not develop. There had even been talk of a probable display of personal violence, but there was no so much as a spley, wordy tiff in the entire proceedings. Colonial Hall was filled before the hour of the call. E. J. Fleming stated the purpose of the gathering. For chaircturning Saturday.

During a recital at the college this evening the barns of Prof. A. J. Cook and F. M. Kinney, not far from the institution, were discovered ablase. The dwellings of the owners, and one other house and barn, were in imminent danger. At the first sarm the male student body, some in dress suits, turned out and made a tush for the scene of the fire.
